

We’d keep both.

The first promise matters. So does the date operations was asked to meet.

EVIDENCE AVAILABLE - 24 OCT 2026

2 approved reschedules explain the 16.7-point gap.

The definition changed. The deliveries didn’t.

Our call	Keep the measures together, with the reconciliation beside them. A revised date must never erase the first promise.
What we know	K-09’s receipt confirms delivery on 20 Oct. The evidence arrived on 23 Oct. The delivery itself hasn’t changed.
The tradeoff	Two measures need more explanation. One headline would hide either the customer’s changed promise or operations’ accepted commitment.
Before release	The sponsor must approve which decisions each measure supports. Compensation and contractual use need their own owners’ agreement.

The evidence and release conditions follow on the next page.

The record behind the call.

12 commitments, originally due 2–22 October 2026. Equal weight. A reschedule stays in the cohort; an unconfirmed outcome stays in the denominator.

Dates are in October 2026. Approval is the dated customer acceptance of a revised promise.

1 confirmed late against both dates • 0 unconfirmed at this cutoff

- The boundary

Receipts must be available by the cutoff to count as confirmed. Event date and receipt date stay separate. This example excludes cancellations, partial deliveries, time zones, and contract exceptions.
- To put it to work

Agree the definitions. Reconcile the rows. Rehearse exceptions with the backup. Record the sponsor’s decision and effective date.
